

What is MCEE?

MCEE is a statewide alliance of business, labor, government and educational organizations devoted to future focused economic and financial education for all Michigan citizens. We emphasize the role of professional educators as the key to quality economic education in the classroom. We also recognize the need for practical, nonbiased and relevant economic and finance education throughout life.

The MCEE Network- one of a kind?

Only MCEE promotes economic and financial education through an academically based statewide network of regional centers hosted by higher education institutions where teachers are trained to teach economics.

INVESTING IN MICHIGAN

What would you think of an education system that taught 2+2=5? Or that the capital of Michigan is Detroit? Every day across Michigan, students and innocent citizens are presented with similar incorrect or misleading answers to today's critically important economic questions. They are also exposed to education or finance programs with plenty of "sizzle" but no "steak." Many are unaware of the negative consequences of this misinformation.

Many of Michigan's challenges today can be laid at the doorstep of economic illiteracy and economic populism. From understanding Michigan's role in a global economy to personal financial decisions, we must attack the effects of economic illiteracy in our state now.

Join our fight against the ravages of economic illiteracy and economic populism by becoming a member of MCEE. You will join a team supporting the expansion of services by our statewide MCEE Network of regional Centers for Economic Education in colleges and universities where teacher training impacted more than 700,000 K-12 students during the 2007-08 school year. This is less than 50% of all K-12 students in Michigan. Our goal is to impact 75% of the state's students by 2009.

MOST IMPORTANT is the knowledge that you are investing in a movement to promote future-focused economic education for Michigan citizens of tomorrow.
